Colleen McEnaney
visual journalist & programmer
704-701-6096 | colleenmcenaney@gmail.com
colleenmcenaney.com

EDUCATION

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
B.A. Journalism and Mass Communication, Multimedia Sequence, May 2014
Minor in Information Systems and Technology

SKILLS

HTML/CSS, Javascript/jQuery, Django, Python, D3.js, MySQL, responsive design and development

EXPERIENCE

Sep. 2014 - Present

The Wall Street Journal
News Applications Developer
- create interactive graphics for the Business & Tech. section
- collect, process and maintain data for long term projects
- build storytelling tools for editors, reporters and the graphics team

June 2014 – Aug. 2014

The New York Times
Interactive News Intern
- worked on front-end development for the Times' World Cup game
- helped build an internal tool that improves reader recommendations and allows editors to better promote their own content

Aug. 2013 – Dec. 2013

New Media Campaigns
Front-End Development Intern
- worked on design and front-end development for client sites and projects

June 2013 – Aug. 2013

The Wall Street Journal
Interactive Graphics Intern
- created interactive graphics
- built Django admin tools and template for WSJ.com

Jan. 2013 – April 2013

Powering a Nation
Programming Team Co-Leader
- worked on a development team to produce a scrolling interactive piece for 100gallons.org

May 2012 - Aug. 2012

Reese News Lab
Interactive Developer and Designer
- helped develop and design WhichWayNC.com, a responsive political news site
- experimented with new forms of storytelling including The Roll Call, a database-driven web application

May 2012 – April 2013

The Daily Tar Heel
Multimedia Editor
- trained staff in filming, editing and interactive graphics production
- lead workshops on multimedia storytelling

HONORS

Dean's list five semesters
Recipient of 3 scholarships from the School of Journalism and Mass Communication
2nd place award in Technological Innovation at AEJMC for The Roll Call